Directions : Read the following passage and answer the given questions.

As concerns loom globally over possible displacement of workforce owing to the impact of AI, the Economic Survey on Friday said India's workforce in low-skill and low-value-added services remains vulnerable.To minimise the impact, the Survey has recommended creation of robust institutions that can help transition workers to medium-and high-skilled jobs, where they can work alongside AI rather than being replaced by this technology.It has also said that the regulatory frameworks will need to be revisited and amended so that the use of AI aligns with societal values, balancing innovation with accountability and transparency.Further, a tripartite pact between the government, private sector and academia has been suggested to ensure that the gains from AI-driven productivity are widely distributed, aligning with inclusive growth strategy.

The impact of automation is expected to be seen largely on the workforce in the business process outsourcing (BPO) and information technology (IT) sector, in which a significant number of employees work in low-value added services. This is because firms in those sectors would substitute labour for technology to cut costs."Although the impact of AI on labour will be felt across the world, the problem is magnified for India, given its size and its relatively low per capita income," the Survey said, adding that protracted labour displacement is something that a labour-surplus country like India can't afford.The argument assumes significance as India being a consumption-based economy, any displacement of workforce or loss of jobs, could affect the country's economic growth trajectory.The Survey noted that each	technology revolution has displaced large segments of workforce and led to economic disparity.It also pressed on the need for social responsibility by the corporate sector.

The Survey, citing EY data, said that 57% of occupations in emerging countries are expected to be affected by higher generative AI adoption.

"If companies do not optimise the introduction of AI over a longer horizon and do not handle it with sensitivity, the demand for policy intervention and the demand on fiscal resources to compensate will be irresistible," the Survey said.For equipping the workforce, the Survey has proposed a stewarding institutions concept, along with existing categories of enabling institutions and insuring institutions.Enabling institutions are focused on equipping the workforce with the necessary skills needed to adapt and thrive in a shifting landscape.

Insuring institutions are intended to provide a soft-landing for workers whose finances have been hit and whose well-being has been affected during the transitionary period due to AI.Stewarding institutions are those that will be responsible for designing an approach that delicately balances public welfare without stifling innovation.

Q24. What can be about India's workforce and AI from the passage? (a) The ramifications of AI implementation will be confined exclusively to high-skilled occupations in India, rendering low-skilled laborers impervious to its effects. (b) The intrinsic composition of India's labor market renders it acutely susceptible to workforce upheavals precipitated by AI-driven automation. (c) The proliferation of AI technologies will exert an inconsequential influence on India's economic framework, given the sheer magnitude of its population. (d) The most efficacious countermeasure against AI-induced employment attrition is the outright proscription of automation across industrial sectors.	(e) The seamless assimilation of AI into economic structures will invariably catalyze growth without necessitating deliberate policy interventions.

Q25. According to the passage, which of the following strategies should India adopt to mitigate AI's impact on jobs?

(I) Constituting institutional frameworks that furnish laborers with advanced competencies requisite for assimilation into AI-driven industries.
(II) Instituting economic safeguards to ameliorate the financial precarity of individuals displaced by AI-induced workforce contractions.

(a) Only (I)

(b) Both (I) and (II)

(c) Only (III)

Q28. Suppose the government fails to establish "enabling institutions" as suggested in the passage. What could be the most likely consequence?

(a) AI-driven job displacement will be significantly reduced.
(b) Workers will struggle to transition to higher-skilled jobs, worsening economic disparity.
(c) The private sector will independently provide all necessary reskilling programs.
(d) AI adoption will slow down, preventing automation in low-skilled jobs.
(e) India will maintain its position as a global leader in IT and BPO services.

Q29.Which of the following best represents the paradox in the passage?

(I) AI-driven automation will primarily benefit the corporate sector, leaving no room for government intervention.
(II) AI will make labor-intensive jobs obsolete, yet companies will continue to hire workers for the same roles.

(a) Only (I)

(b) Both (II) and (III)

(c) Both (III) and (IV)

(a) Only (I) is True (b) Both (I) and (III) are True (c) Only (I) is False (d) Both (II) and (III) are True (e) All (I), (II), and (III) are True
