Trampled over: on the RCB cup
celebration, stampede in Bengaluru

In less than 24 hours, ecstasy turned into despair. Royal Challengers Bengaluru's (RCB) maiden Indian Premier League (IPL) title, secured on Tuesday night in Ahmedabad, triggered unabated joy and raucous celebrations in Bengaluru and the rest of Karnataka. However, by Wednesday evening, a thick shroud of grief hung over the southern metropolis as a ghastly stampede in and around RCB's home ground, the M. Chinnaswamy Stadium, left 11 dead and more than 50 injured. The hallowed venue was hosting a felicitation event in honour of the victorious team while fans outside, desperate to get in, ended up as a heaving chaotic mass with many gasping for breath. Asphyxia was the primary cause of death besides injuries suffered in the stifling rush. Sport is often a tight pact between the performing athlete and the adoring fan; it triggers emotions, and in the case of the IPL, forges a connection between the franchise and a vast audience.

RCB has always had a loyal fan base, and the IPL triumph was bound to attract followers running into lakhs, towards the Central Business District of M.G. Road, Brigade Road, Cubbon Road, Queens Road and KSCA Clubhouse Link Road. Karnataka Chief Minister Siddaramaiah admitted that the crowd was beyond expectations. However, to use a massive gathering as an explanation for an avoidable accident, is unacceptable. The multitude of fans near the Vidhana Soudha, the State legislature, from Wednesday morning should have compelled the authorities to tighten crowd control protocols. RCB had proclaimed that there would be an open-bus parade, but the police clarified that it would not happen. With no access to the Vidhana Soudha where the Chief Minister felicitated the players, the frenzied gathering rushed towards the stadium for a glimpse of stars such as Virat Kohli. The rumours about the gates being open to the public, and the contradictory messages about entry by invitation only, exacerbated the crisis.

As the venue was packed, gates were closed but fans tried to force their way in. Be it the Karnataka State Cricket Association's (KSCA) security or police personnel, staffing was inadequate and a fatal climax was inevitable. The State Government, the RCB management, the KSCA and the BCCI have expressed their condolences while some have indulged in finger-pointing. The Chief Minister has announced that the Bengaluru Police Commissioner and all officials responsible for the jurisdiction where the stadium is have been suspended, pending an inquiry. There will also be a judicial inquiry. However, the grim truth is that the fan, who drives the commerce of every sport, is the last priority for administrators. Clear communication, effective policing and proper advance notice for an event of this scale are all essential or else, such tragedies might recur periodically.

Summary

The passage recounts the tragic aftermath of Royal Challengers Bengaluru's (RCB) first-ever IPL title win. While the city initially erupted in joy, celebrations turned into horror as a stampede outside Bengaluru's M. Chinnaswamy Stadium claimed 11 lives and injured over 50. The chaos occurred during a felicitation event, exacerbated by miscommunication, lack of crowd control, and inadequate security arrangements. Despite prior announcements and massive crowds, authorities failed to manage the situation effectively. The passage criticizes the administration for negligence and emphasizes that fans — the backbone of the sport — are often overlooked. A judicial inquiry and suspensions have been announced, but the tragedy underscores the urgent need for better planning and communication in large-scale public events.

Tone:

The tone is somber, critical, and reflective. It mourns the loss of life, condemns the administrative failure, and urges accountability to prevent future disasters.

Injustice in the delay:
on the next Census

India's next decadal population census, initially delayed by the COVID-19 pandemic, is now scheduled to conclude by March 2027, after a further delay apparently fuelled by political motivations. The Census in 2021 did not take place as planned, thus impacting different aspects of governance, especially social security schemes for vulnerable populations that rely heavily on updated demographic data for effective and efficient delivery. For the first time, the Census will be digitally administered, enabling faster data gathering and easier accessibility for analysis, thereby allowing population-level data to be more dynamic. However, this technological adoption also heightens concerns regarding data theft and privacy. While the nature of the Census will evolve, transparency at all levels will be crucial to building public trust in the exercise. Preparations for this massive operation, which will reach every household, are underway, with more logistical details anticipated in the weeks ahead.

India stands at a demographic crossroads, facing the challenges of growing populations of the young and the old alongside significant regional variations in key indicators. Fresh data from the Census can help address many issues. For the first time since 1931, caste categories will be enumerated. While more reliable data on the socio-economic standing of caste groups can inform development planning, the potential for further social segmentation makes caste enumeration a double-edged sword. A critical aspect of the upcoming Census is its link to the next delimitation of Lok Sabha and Assembly constituencies, which will redraw India's electoral map. The Constitution mandates that the next inter-State delimitation be based on population figures from the first Census after 2026. The current distribution of Lok Sabha seats is based on the 1971 population spread. With the reference date for the Census set as March 1, 2027, for most of the country, this can pave the way for the next delimitation exercise.

States that have experienced lower population growth in recent decades, particularly in the peninsular region, have expressed concern that their parliamentary representation will diminish if population becomes the sole criterion for redistribution. The Centre has yet to clarify its stance on this matter. With the Census now in motion, it is imperative for the Centre to engage with all stakeholders and build consensus on the sensitive issue of delimitation.

Question 4:

What is a key technological advancement in the upcoming Census, and what concern does it raise?

- A. Use of artificial intelligence; fear of algorithmic bias
- B. Digital administration; concerns over data theft and privacy
- C. Drone mapping; airspace violation risks
- D. Blockchain tracking; regulatory confusion
- E. None of the above

Question 5:

What is the constitutional linkage between the upcoming Census and India's electoral structure?

- A. Census data will determine the retirement age of legislators.
- B. Census figures will influence the reservation policy for civil services.
- C. The next delimitation of Lok Sabha and Assembly seats will be based on Census data.
- D. Census figures are used to determine the annual budget of State Assemblies.
- E. None of the above

Today's Descriptive Question:

- Write an essay of 200 words about the role of Renewable Energy in Combating Climate Change.

Renewable energy plays a pivotal role in combating climate change, offering a sustainable and environmentally friendly alternative to fossil fuels. As the burning of coal, oil, and natural gas releases significant amounts of greenhouse gases, primarily carbon dioxide, into the atmosphere, it exacerbates the greenhouse effect, leading to global warming. Renewable energy sources such as solar, wind, hydro, and geothermal, on the other hand, produce little to no greenhouse gas emissions during operation. This transition from fossil fuels to renewables is crucial in reducing the overall carbon footprint and mitigating the adverse effects of climate change.

One of the key benefits of renewable energy is its ability to provide a continuous supply of clean power. Unlike fossil fuels, which are finite and subject to depletion, renewable resources are abundant and naturally replenished. For instance, solar and wind energy can be harnessed in most regions around the world, providing a reliable source of power. Moreover, advancements in technology have significantly reduced the cost of renewable energy, making it increasingly competitive with traditional energy sources.

In addition to reducing greenhouse gas emissions, renewable energy also contributes to energy security, job creation, and economic growth. By investing in renewable energy infrastructure, countries can decrease their dependence on imported fuels, promote local industries, and stimulate innovation. As the global community continues to recognize the urgency of addressing climate change, the adoption of renewable energy is essential for achieving a sustainable and resilient future.
