ANSWER1.Ans: (B)

Explanation: "Will become" is correct as it expresses a future certainty. The subject "cities" is plural, so "will become" fits grammatically and contextually.

(A) Incorrect: "is" does not agree with plural "cities."

(C) Incorrect: "has become" is grammatically wrong — should be "have become" for present perfect plural.

(D) Incorrect: "would becomes" has incorrect form – should be "would become."

(E) Incorrect: "becoming" is not correctly used after "warn that."

2.Ans: (A)

Explanation: "Hasn't submitted" is correct; present perfect negative fits with "yet," showing an action not completed up to now.

(B) Incorrect: Present continuous "isn't submitting" doesn't fit with "yet."

(C) Incorrect: Past continuous is illogical here.

(D) Incorrect: Simple past doesn't go well with "yet" when the deadline is still approaching.

(E) Incorrect: Wrong word order.

3.Ans: (C)

Explanation: This is a first conditional structure: If + present simple, will + base verb. "Will suffer" fits the future possibility.

(A) Incorrect: "Would have suffered" is past hypothetical (third conditional).

(B) Incorrect: "Suffers" does not follow the first conditional structure.

(D) Incorrect: Passive past perfect is incorrect.

(E) Incorrect: "Is suffering" implies present continuous, but the sentence is about future consequences.

4.Ans: (B)

Explanation: "Have sparked" is correct because the subject "regulations" is plural and the present perfect shows recent action with ongoing relevance.

(A) Incorrect: "Is sparking" mismatches with plural subject.

(C) Incorrect: "Has spark" is incorrect — wrong tense and form.

(D) Incorrect: "Are spark" is grammatically wrong — "are sparking" would be better but still not best here.

(E) Incorrect: "Had been spark" is an incorrect structure.

5.Ans: (A)

Explanation: “Adapted” is correct as it shows a completed past action that follows “eventually.”

(B) Incorrect: “Were adapting” suggests an ongoing process, but the sentence needs a completed action.

(C) Incorrect: “Adapts” is present tense and doesn't match past context.

(D) Incorrect: “Had adapting” is not grammatically valid.

(E) Incorrect: “Was adapt” is ungrammatical.

6.Ans: (C)

Explanation: Justice must be served and accountability fixed for negligence, but it's time the state government, and its counterparts in other parts of the country, addressed the common failings that underlie the recurrent bridge collapses.

7.Ans: (B)

Explanation: In an era where peace efforts are often reduced to online petitions and fleeting social media posts, a prestigious Prize offering instant recognition might be the only form of motivation that resonates today.

8.Ans: (E)

Explanation: For generations, the idea that men and women cannot truly be friends has been reinforced by both cultural narratives and cinematic clichés, often portraying such relationships as inherently fragile and bound to escalate into something more.

9.Ans: (C)

Explanation: One solution to ensure all future decisions are fully correct is to drop any connection to actual peace and hand out a Prize to all claimants.

10. Ans: (D)

Explanation: Though there are legitimate grounds for content moderation—such as preventing the spread of misinformation that could incite violence or endanger national security—such actions must be rare, narrowly targeted, and guided by constitutional safeguards.
